DICTATORSHIP OF THE RETARDED

As the 21st Century began, human evolution was at a turning point. Natural selection...a process which had once favored the noblest traits of man, now began to favor different traits. Most science fiction of the day predicted a future that was more civilized and more intelligent. But as time went on, things seemed to be heading in the opposite direction: a dumbing-down. How did this happen? Evolution does not necessarily reward intelligence. With no natural predators to thin the herd, it began to simply reward those who reproduced the most and left the intelligent to become an endangered species.

—Introductory voiceover to Idiocracy

Demographic studies generally indicate that the more intelligent and educated women in affluent nations have much lower reproductive rates than the less educated....

—Wikipedia entry on "Dysgenics"

LOOK AROUND YOU.

The world is getting dumber before your eyes. There's a reason for this, and it has very little to do with our educational system: Simply put, the dumb ones have more babies. There are exceptions—you might be one of them, so don't freak the fuck out on me—but that's the general rule. As the world grows dumber, the smart and discerning will become even less willing to plop their frail offspring into this squalling, dysgenic soup bowl. And things will get worse.

There seems to be no one in modern pop culture who is smarter about stupidity than Mike Judge, creator of Beavis and Butt-head and Office Space. His film Idiocracy, recently released on DVD, is the funniest and scariest movie that no one is likely to see this year. I want you to rent it, and I want you to think about it. If you're smart, I want you to start having babies, and if you're stupid, I want you to stop.

In Idiocracy, Luke Wilson stars as Army Private Joe Bauers, chosen as a candidate for the ultra-secret Human Hibernation Experiment for no other reason than he is painfully average—Joe scores right in the Bell Curve's middle on all known indices of human physiology and intelligence. Joe's cryonic freeze was only supposed to last a year, but due to Army bungling, his frozen pod didn't hatch until 500 years later in the Great Garbage Avalanche of 2505. Joe awakens to a world in which "mankind became stupider at a frightening rate" and "the English language had deteriorated into a hybrid of hillbilly, Valley Girl, inner-city slang, and various grunts. Joe was able to understand them, but when he spoke in an ordinary voice, he seemed pompous and faggy to them."

Joe rises from his centuries-long slumber to find that he now has the highest IQ on Earth. While he was asleep, Beavis, Butt-head, and some really dumb chicks repopulated the planet. In this Dumb New World, America's #1 movie is called Ass, featuring nothing more than a naked male posterior farting for ninety minutes. The president is a musclebound "five-time Smackdown champion" and former porn star named Dwayne Elizondo

Mountain Dew Herbert Camacho. Corporate sponsorship is plastered on everything, even people's names—there's a Dr. Lexus, an Officer Tylenol Jones, and a lawyer named Frito. Television is awash in sex and violence, with stations such as The Masturbation Network and The Violence Channel, whose top show is called Ow! My Balls! Costco offers law degrees, while Starbucks features handjobs and "full-body lattes." One of Carl's Jr.'s many slogans is "Fuck You! I'm Eating!" I won't spoil too much of the plot except to reveal that Joe helps the government realize the nation's crops would grow better if they were watered instead of sprinkled with a sports drink called "Brawndo—The Thirst Mutilator."

The film's opening sequence is a split-screen comparison of a high-IQ yuppie couple contrasted against a trailer-park 'tard named Clevon. The yuppies, sometimes with good reason, consistently hesitate to reproduce, while Clevon's fertile scrotum effortlessly yields multiple progeny. As the male yuppie finally succumbs to a heart attack while masturbating to produce sperm for artificial insemination—effectively killing his bloodline—Clevon survives a jet-ski injury to his testicles and continues to impregnate multiple dimwitted females. The screen rapidly becomes overpopulated with a flow chart of Clevon's descendants. As we watched this segment about the stupid's birth rate running roughshod over that of the intelligent, my brother said, "What's scary about this is it's so true."

It's true—inarguably—but nearly impossible to mention without facing the wrath of censorious egalitarian fascists everywhere. These days, it is nearly a crime—and it may be a literal criminal offense in the near future—to imply that intelligence is hereditary and that society's interests might best be served if stupid people took a chill pill on the breedin'.

Liberals seem sensitive to everything except what's truly important. Back in the early 1970s, population control used to be a solid plank in the liberal platform until it was deemed culturally insensitive to imply that many women should keep their frickin' legs shut. Now there are nearly TWICE as many people on Earth as there were then—and most of them seem highly stupid—but the "sensitive" lefty cowards are too afraid to make a peep about it. Perhaps because of this, Idiocracy was released with almost zero publicity.

Things don't magically become untrue simply because they hurt your feelings. The passage of time does not always bring progress. People ARE getting dumber. A middle finger and the word "whatever" are the closest to articulation that most folks can muster. We're already halfway to the world depicted in Idiocracy. Sterilization is probably too harsh and inhumane, but after all, the stupid are stupid. There has to be some way we can trick them into using birth control. Let's get to work.

This is gonna be one of those unusual editions of Erotic City, because guess what...the politicians are fucking with what we and all our faithful readers hold so dearly—our rights.

To start with, a fine new erotic establishment by the name of Presley's Playhouse Cabaret will be opening soon in south Salem, featuring a large food-and-beverage menu in an exotic lounge atmosphere. They'll be tearing it up seven nights a week with Fetish Sex Night Mondays, Biker Night Tuesdays, Cowboy Wednesdays (when ya can get in for free in western attire so you can order some cleavage shots from your favorite entertainer), Double Vision Thursdays with two girls on each stage, Lingerie Fridays, Gentlemen's Saturdays (gets you a dance and a free tie), and you can check out their buffet and dance contest with prizes every Sunday night. They are also auditioning for entertainers who will get free house fees for the first week. Call Frank at (503) 507-5277 for details.

All sounds great, doesn't it? Well, the Salem city councilors seem to feel differently, as they are pushing for changes in the way the O.L.C.C. issues liquor licenses at the behest of their constituents, primarily those surrounding Presley's Playhouse. It appears the conservatives permeating the neighborhoods of our state's capitol feel that economic development of this nature could harm the area by increasing the number of undesirables and amount of crime, drugs, and litter in south Salem. Despite objections, the O.L.C.C. voted 5-0 to approve the license, even after August's unanimous vote by the city council to reject their liquor license request—because they had no legal basis on which to deny the license. The council is seeking to develop and expand the O.L.C.C.'s use of "adverse impact" as a measuring tool to help limit the issuance of liquor licenses to adult establishments, with whom they are already rumored to have a frigid relationship. Even though this displays yet another small victory for our Sindustry, the war is far from over...three well-known and politically affiliated Salem residents are seeking to amend the Oregon Constitution to allow state or local governments to regulate strip acts. One example of such methods is the perceived community's desire to double the distance that alcohol-serving establishments are from parks and childcare facilities...as if finding adult-friendly locations wasn't hard enough for honest capitalists. Their political-action committee is planning on collecting the 100,000 signatures in time to push for the November 2008 ballot on statewide Initiative Petition 54, despite strong opposition from the ACLU based on its changing the free-expression provision. Only time will tell, but there are still active forces working toward regulation of strip-club locations, regulation of performances/acts, and regulation of the distance from the entertainers...all so we unsavory characters can supposedly be more respectful of women, our communities, and help entertainers use their freedom (the same one that protects their ability to dance and has been challenged and defeated virtually every four years since the 80s) to pursue more angelic endeavors.

You know, it seems like they're never really gonna learn, does it? Just remember that come election time, it's up to all of us to not only make our voices heard, but to choose wisely when selecting the officials that we're electing concerning their stances on issues such as these.

On to more shenanigans...be sure to stop by the Boom Boom Room and pay a visit to our lovely Exotic Covergirl Steely. It's time to rumble at The Dolphin I with blood and true knockouts as Stripper Boxing returns on Thursday, Mar. 15th @ 8pm...reserve your seats now. Exotica will be hosting their 8-Year Anniversary Party on Sat., Mar. 10th @ 9pm. This V.I.P. event will feature a huge food buffet, an ice luge, feature performances, beverage specials, and prize giveaways.

Meanwhile, Safari Showclub is starting up Double Vision Tuesdays with two-girl hourly theme shows, Wet and Wild Wednesdays featuring steamy indoor hot-tub shows, and Thursdays featuring free table-dance drawings every hour. Plus on Fridays and Saturdays, score some free porn and toys provided by Cathie's. Safari is now showcasing "gown dances" for a more "personal" experience. And if you're a gambling man, ante up for their Texas Hold 'Em tourneys on Mon.-Wed. @ 5pm and Sat. @ noon.

If you're looking to get lucky Irish-style, you can bet your ass there are plenty of holiday sexcapades in store for you. Over at Cabaret I and II, come celebrate at their St. Patrick's Day Parties on Sat., Mar. 17th at both locations featuring giveaways, specials, and shows all night long. Be sure to check out their Spring Break specials all month long while you're there. At DV8, it's Queen Laurie of Jagermeister's birthday on Fri., Mar. 2nd, a live tattoo show by Raven Ink with an ugliest tattoo contest on Wed., Mar. 14th, and you can find your pot o' gold with the hot shamrock lassies on Sat., Mar. 17th.

Come experience the luck o' the Irish at Jody's Bar and Grill on St. Patrick's Day, where you can check out their new game room featuring pool, darts, and electronic games. And stop in for a swig of the leprechaun's special potion over at The Pallas on the 17th while you're at it.

So take a swig of whiskey and punch a leprechaun for me, Portland. See ya next time.

ANAL BLEACHING

THE LAST FRONTIER OF EXTERNAL COSMETIC ENHANCEMENT

OK, so after your lip augmentation and collagen injections and tummy tuck and birthmark removal and laser spider vein treatment and electrolysis and dermabrasion and citrus fruit peel and boob job and Botox therapy and laser skin resurfacing and labial rejuvenation and armpit waxing and that radically overhauled facelift, you still feel like something's not right, don't you? It's your asshole, you stupid asshole.

After your asshole is bleached, will you FINALLY feel good about yourself? Will your new miracle anus that twinkles like a star be the trick that leads you down a pathway of self-esteem and stable relationships?

Historically, the asshole has perhaps been the most cosmetically neglected area on the human body. And yet, as we grow more and more naked as a culture, as the ass increasingly becomes a sex organ, and as our friends in the sex-positive community teach us to become more anal-accepting, discerning individuals frown upon brownish bungholes. How could you possibly live with a stained starfish? A darkened anal nimbus would only bring shame upon its owner. No one likes a "brown-eyed girl" these days, if you catch what I'm tryin' to say.

Of course, one might rightly wonder who's complaining about all these discolored anuses. With God as my witness, I can't ever recall getting a good, cold look at THE PLACE WHERE SHIT COMES FROM on any another human being. I've only slammed two girls in the pooper, and I made sure that the lighting was dim or nonexistent on both occasions. Even nude and under surgical lights, it's next to impossible to see someone's anus unless they deliberately spread their cheeks and present it to you. And fuck knows what mine looks like—no one besides a physician has ever gotten a good, hard, well-lit look at my Most Private of Places.

Exactly WHO is staring so intently at your poop chute, people, that you've become so self-conscious about it? Anal cosmetic enhancement might be understandable for the narcissistic porn star or erotic dancer...or maybe even receptive gay men who insist on having sex under Klieg lights and want to make their lovers' boners just a wee bit harder...but is anal bleaching a procedure of any use to society at-large?

There persist rumors that perky white-chick semi-actresses Courtney Cox, Lara Flynn Boyle, and Katie Holmes have undergone the procedure. These allegations may be the stuff of false innuendo and malicious Internet scuttlebutt. For a long time (all right, maybe about three weeks), many people presumed that anal bleaching itself was nothing more than an amusing urban legend. However, there exist at least three beauty salons that perform the procedure—Pink Cheeks in Sherman Oaks, CA (employing their own "Pink Cheeks Amazing Anal Cream"), a place called TRIM in Chicago, and Bees' Knees way on down in Sydney, Australia.

Typically, the process involves smearing a cream containing approximately 2% hydroquinone around the patient's anal rim, which may have become initially discolored from factors such as natural pigmentation and/or lifelong staining from doo-doo and dyes contained in processed foods. Before someone got the bright idea to apply it on THE ASS, hydroquinone had historically been used in skin-lightening products used by the more self-loathing members in the black community. Hydroquinone is illegal in several countries but not the US. Although the World Health Organization claims that there is "inadequate evidence" that hydroquinone is toxic, others have linked it to "skin cancer, liver damage, kidney damage, [and] poisoning," as well as leukemia and thyroid disorders. It has also been shown to cause mutations in developing animal fetuses. Merely knowing that the chemical has been used to process photos and manufacture rubber might scare away those whose concern for their health outweighs their anal vanity.

Applied improperly or in excess, the cream may also make your ass burn more than the most flagrant burrito. The female author of a webpage designed to "keep your asshole from getting burned to a crisp" claims that a friend became fecally incontinent after a botched anal-bleaching procedure and ultimately had to undergo laparoscopic colorectal surgery.

So where does it end? The final frontier is, of course, the internal organs. The day is nigh when the ultra-vain will elect to have colon straightening, liver smoothing, esophagus sculpting, and pancreas whitening. I do not doubt that people will one day undergo surgery or take medication to ensure that even their bowel movements are more attractive.

It's on again, ya'll, and in this month's column I'll be letting you know where the hot spots are!

First Up... "J.Mack's Ladies' Night Out"

The new location is at the brand-new S.I.N. Club in Tigard right off of I-5. This spot has it all, from the best drinks in town to the sound system. There are also two pool tables, as well as a stage, above the dance floor. To all aspiring artists out there that may want to perform on "Ladies' Night," please send your info to whatzcrackintv@yahoo.com or drop off a demo package c/o J.Mack to the club. We look forward to featuring the hottest acts from all around the Northwest! My partner DJ CMC will once again be holdin' it down with all the latest cutz plus some old-school favorites. The party cracks off every Thursday night @ 10pm. Ladies get in FREE All NIGHT! For the fellas, it's only a $5 cover. We'll be having specials all night, good food, and hookahs! The directions are I-5 South to the Tigard/Newberg Exit. Go one block past the KFC to 11445 SW Pacific Highway and turn right into the parking lot just before the hotel. Spread da word that J.Mack's "Ladies' Night" is finally back! Hope to see you there, baby!

Next Up... "The Game Rocked the Roseland"

One of the best shows of 2007 by far! As an artist myself I can always appreciate when I see a fellow entertainer rock the fuck out the mic! That's exactly what this cat did, and the sound system at the Roseland was knockin' like the police! The whole damn place was jumpin' and there were NO problems! To all the true hip-hop and rap lovers in attendance that night, let's continue to keep that peaceful vibe goin'! That's the shit that keeps the party real fly!

Next at the Roseland, make sure to check out my fam Andre Nickotina. This is one of the hottest unda-ground catz out the Bay Area with a show that you won't forget! It takes place Friday, March 9th, 2007 @ The Roseland Theater, located downtown Portland on the corner of NW 6th & Burnside. I will also be performing that night on the undercard along with my catz from the F.B. Project!

Got some new jointz to drop off the upcoming CD. Plus that night I got something special for all the honeys! See ya there...

Whatz Really Crackin'?... "Hate Circles Gone Wild"

It never ceases to amaze me the levels some will go to get their hate across! We have all been hated on from someone at some time in all of our lives for whatever reason. The thing that gets me is that all haters seriously think that they're jus' keepin' it real! Everybody that is honestly real can always see through a hater. This is the reason I believe haters are now beginning to form support groups for one another. Most haters never really look too happy and aren't very good at whispering!

by j.mack

I have witnessed some of these miserable individuals actually holding competitions to see who can hate hardest! It's sad that they fail to realize that their idiotic acts of hatred actually motivate the ones that they hate. My homie once took a picture of a hater sleepin' with his fist balled up. He couldn't wait to wake up to hate another day! What a life...this shit is startin' to get ridiculous! These people are desperately in need of hugs, y'all! They hate their own lives to the point that they want other people to suffer with them. That is why these circles of hate are constantly forming! As they dwell within the misery of their own ignorance concocting their pathetic little plans, I hope that they at least take a minute to really appreciate the ones which they hate for allowing them to have a purpose in life! You're welcome!

"Foul in the Game"

I was recently informed by an inside source that had worked at a P-town lingerie shop that her panties were being jacked by coworkers. What the FUCK? I hear things all the time about the weird occurrences that go on in this industry, but this shit is way crazy! I was told that her coworkers were heavily on meth and couldn't afford their own. Damn, how much do panties cost nowadays? Is this what the game has come to?

Do You Want Your Own DVD?

Whatz Crackin' Films and Bellboy Entertainment are now in effect with several different projects. One of them happens to be personalized DVDs for dancers and exotic entertainers. Imagine having your own DVD with footage of yourself doing your favorite routines. Each DVD will contain three to four of your performances such as shower scenes, stage shows, toy shows, etc. Included with production cost, each client will receive ten copies of a professionally filmed and edited DVD of her own to sell to customers at her workplace, or to give out for advertisement. If you or someone you know is interested, please go to whatzcrackin.com for all of the details and see a demo of what it's all about...

Honey of the Month

Labeled by many of her friends as The Puerto Rican Princess, Margarita is definitely that. She is currently a fashion model that enjoys life to the fullest. I congratulate you, sweetheart, for being the March 2007 Honey of the Month!

Be regular and orderly in your life, so that you may be violent and original in your work.

—Flaubert

Though it was ten years ago, I remember the cocky little bastard like it was yesterday. He did a few illos for a "hate zine" I used to publish and drew the cover for a CD on which I seemed to encourage violence toward women. We hung out maybe a dozen times—shooting guns, photographing homeless people, and disparaging humankind. He was always funny and genial, articulate without being pretentious, with an unblinking SoCal sunniness to his personality that shines through all his artwork. Back then, it was clear what each of us wanted.

He wanted success.

I wanted trouble.

We both got what we wanted.

When I got out of prison six years ago, his devil-girl stickers were ubiquitous—as prevalent in Portland as lesbians and cell phones, and that's mighty prevalent. While I was spending a couple years in a steel cage, Coop was busy taking over the world.

You've seen his artwork almost everywhere, and I suspect there may come a time where it will indeed be visible everywhere you turn. It's a cleanly drawn, brightly colored, psychobilly melange of demons, hot rods, monsters, and big-boobed plumpers. Coop acknowledges a debt to old-school ink-slingers such as Robert Williams and Ed "Big Daddy" Roth, but he's managed to ingest that style and excrete something all his own.

Juxtapoz magazine says that Coop's name is "now more recognizable to modern youth than that of Rembrandt." He's a marketing genius whose imagery can be found on Zippo lighters, key chains, statues, model kits, calendars, shot glasses, concert posters, coaster sets, shirts, patches, wallets, buckles, hats, skateboards, and innumerable other items which shortness of breath precludes me from mentioning. His work has been exhibited from coast to coast and in Europe. His tattoo designs appear in all "alternative" tat parlors. He even crafted a typeface which is currently being used in a McDonald's ad campaign. He's done a poster for Altoids, and his website (www.coopstuff.com) hints that he'll be doing more big-bucks ad work in the near future.

He's probably a millionaire, but I'm afraid to ask. As a mutual friend put it, "I like hanging out with him at his house, but it makes me feel inferior."

Coop is easily the most successful—and least tortured—artist I've ever known.

His wife Ruth is a big, blithe, brassy, buxotic broad who seemingly forms the template for most of the oversized "Coop girls" who people his artwork. She's such an Amazon relative to the diminutive Mr. Chris Cooper, one imagines she could hide him inside her vagina. She e-mailed me a list of five questions which Coop finds "boring" to answer, so you'll see nothing here about his age, where he's from, whether he went to art school, if he's really a Satanist, and why he draws the Devil so much.

"I'm doing very well these days," Coop warns me during our first extended chat in years, "so I'm not going to have much piss and vinegar." I begin running down the latest litany of disasters, calamities, and near-death experiences which infect my life like chronic jock itch—and these were things that had happened in only the past WEEK. As he listens patiently, it strikes me that I've never heard one story of real-life turmoil from him. I ask him why he thinks that is.

"I had a pretty good childhood," he answers in his aw-shucks, vaguely twangy accent. "Of all the people I know, I'm the only person I know who has a good relationship with my parents. I think part of that is due to the fact that my parents were the respective weirdos of their families....Mom came from a religious family, and dad was from Oklahoma white trash....When they had kids, they didn't feel the need to be so brutal on them for wanting to read a book....I think I just get out all of my antisocial and perverted impulses in my work, so in my real life I guess I'm just bereft of them...Oscar Wilde said that the worst artists have the most interesting lives, and vice-versa."

He cites Marcel Duchamp as an example of a great artist who had a stable home life. "The stereotype of the tortured artist who's tortured by his demons is kinda full of shit," he continues as I simultaneously listen to him and the demons that are torturing me. "Obviously there are good artists who are tortured by their demons, but there's also a lot of phony-baloney people who use that cliché to redeem the shit they try to foist off onto people....A lot of times, the idea of being this crazed, tortured soul who shoots heroin or lies drunk in the gutter is a way to pump yourself up. A lot of people think part of being a successful artist is being a crazed individual. For me, it was always about the work—doing the work—that's what was important to me."

Although he's always been gracious to me, I used to find him unbearably egomaniacal—and that's saying a bunch, considering

"My entire career has been pretty much a big bonus to me. I'm very happy with how things have gone in my life. I know I'm supposed to be miserable and hating everything, but I'm really not. When I see movie stars whining about how horrible their lives are, it's like, 'Shut the fuck up.' It's hard to have sympathy for someone in that position."

The women Coop draws are significantly more rotund than the gals you see in Hustler. His fetish for zaftig, Rubenesque female specimens is coupled with an oft-articulated disdain for the bean-pole-shaped "Fashionration Camp victims" which dominate modern advertising and pornography.

"Generally speaking, the preferred female form was curvier throughout history," he says. "When you look at all these vintage hotties, like Jenny Lind, they're pretty dumpy by today's standards. Maybe this attraction for skinny women is some weird kind of post-war death cult that took hold in the 70s and hasn't gone away....Like Playboy from the 50s—round face, wholesome—that's the archetype I'm drawn to."

But when does such a preference become a perversion? I mention the "Feeders" sex cult, whose members pump up their women with lard and heavy cream until they're nearly immobile.

Coop agrees that they might be taking things a touch too far: "I think the point at which a woman becomes bedridden, she's kind of losing her sexual attraction to me."

what a self-absorbed mini-Mussolini I am. He used to spew swollen-headed verbal auto-fellatio about his technical gifts that I wrote off as part of a Napoleon complex. Yet his confidence seems to have paid off, and since the hosannas are coming in from all corners, he no longer seems to indulge in such self-handjobbing.

I ask him whether his cheekiness played a role in his conquest of the pop-art demimonde. "If you can't back up what you're talking about, you're full of shit," he says, recalling Muhammad Ali's maxim about how it ain't bragging if it's true. "The few things I regret when I get older are the times I acted like an egotistical ass when I was younger. But I think it was definitely in my favor that I liked what I was doing and thought it was good work. In high school I had a friend who was, at that time, a far more skilled artist than I was, but he was always self-critical and never pursued it. I guess it is part of the equation, to have the nerve to think people should want to pay you for what you do. You sort of have to have that arrogance to become successful, because nobody's going to do you any favors.
